Could you get with Demita about this tank? It has some pumpable solids in it and the analytical shows about 40%. The last time we talked, you indicated that you guys could handle the material if it had solids as long as it was pumpable (and it is) but the price would be higher. I would like to see if you guys can actually handle this waste stream as is or if we need to filter it somehow if you have some options for us on filtering.

Thanks
